

Opening Faculty Administrator Workshop
Trevecca Nazarene University

Boone Conference Center

August 21, 2012

7:45am – 8:30am	Full Breakfast		Boone CC
8:40am – 9:00am	Welcome	Carol Maxson	Boone CC
	Announcements	Carol Maxson
	Introduce new faculty, administrators
9:00am – 10:10am	Dedication Service	Heather Daugherty Philip Eaton, Keynote Speaker	Boone CC
10:10am – 10:25am	Break		Boone CC
10:25am – 11:00am	Christian Liberal Arts Education	Doug Lepter	Boone CC
11:10am – 11:55am	Concurrent Session 1:		Boone BB
	Liberal Arts, Student Debt, and Employability. Panel: Brett Armstrong, Peggy Carpenter, Dean Diehl, Jeff Frame, Jooly Philip	Michael Karounos, moderator	Boone 102/104
	How do our disciplines inform each other? Kathy Mowry – Jea Agee; Mary Frances Hand – Don Kintner	Judy Bivens, moderator	Boone 106-108
	How do our disciplines inform each other? Chris Farrell – Jamie Casler; Betsy Karounos – Heather Daugherty	Prilla Speer, moderator	Boone 115
	Faculty and administrator perspectives on the integration of a biblical worldview in Christian education. A 2012 student research report.	David Deese, moderator Rachel Meredith ('12)	Boone 107
12:00pm – 12:50pm	Lunch		Boone CC
1:00pm – 1:45pm	Book of the Year: Engaging the Culture, Changing the World: The Christian University in a Post-Christian World	Philip Eaton	Boone CC
2:00pm – 2:45pm	Concurrent Session 2:		Boone BB
	Student and faculty research and creative endeavors in liberal arts curricula. Panel: Randy Carden, Fred Cawthorne, Graham Hillard, Alice Patterson Roy Philip	Joe Cole, moderator	Boone 102/104
	What place do liberal arts have in professional education? Panel: Linda Collins, Mike Jackson, Mike Leih, Mike Moredock, Peter Wilson	Susan Lahey, moderator	Boone 106/108
	How do our disciplines inform each other? Mary Ann Meiners – Bryce Fox Jim Hiatt – Terry Pruitt	Stephanie Cawthorne, moderator	Boone 109
	How do our disciplines inform each other? Brent McMillan – Sam Stueckle Tim Johnson – Alisha Russell	Marcia Walker, moderator	Boone 111
2:45pm	Dismiss to prepare for classes

Keynote Speaker

Philip W. Eaton (Ph.D., Arizona State University)

In 2012, Philip W. Eaton retired after serving 17 years as president of Seattle Pacific University, Seattle, Washington. He spent years in the classroom as a professor of literature, sojourned in business for a time and returned to Christian higher education in leadership. He is a writer and speaker, is active in his city and has served on many boards--among them the Council for Christian Colleges and Universities, the National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities, and the Christian College Consortium. (Book cover, IVP Academic, 2012) His most recent book, Engaging the Culture, Changing the World: The Christian University in a Post-Christian World, was selected as TNU's 2012-13 Book of the Year.

11:10am – 11:55am Concurrent Session Descriptions

Liberal arts, student debt, and employability Moderator: Michael Karounos

The panel topic, Liberal Arts, Student Debt, and Employability, was prompted by newspaper, internet, and television reports on the escalating cost of traditional college degrees and employability of college graduates in a shrinking job market. Five faculty members have been invited to represent different aspects of the topic: liberal arts proponent, liberal arts educator, parent of college students, educator for professions, employer. Panel: Brett Armstrong, Chad Maxson, Dean Diehl, Jeff Frame, Jooly Philip. Location Boone 102/104

How do our disciplines inform each other?

These sessions are conversations between two faculty members from different disciplines about how one discipline informs and is informed by the other discipline. In the spirit of Christian Liberal Arts education, listen and be reminded that lines between academic specialties are artificial constructs. Each 45-minute session features two conversations between two faculty members.

Location: Boone 106/108 Kathy Mowry (intercultural studies) – Jea Agee (business) Mary Francis Hand (education) – Don Kintner (urban soc.)	Location Boone 115 Chris Farrell (ecology) – Jamie Casler (social justice) Betsy Karounos (art) – Heather Daugherty (worship arts)
--	--

Faculty and administrator perspectives on the integration of a biblical worldview in Christian education

Moderator: David Deese

Rachel Meredith, a 2012 TNU graduate in Organizational Communication, interviewed a sample of TNU faculty and administrators and reported the findings as her capstone project. Location: Boone 107

2:00pm – 2:45pm Concurrent Session Descriptions

Student and faculty research and creative endeavors in liberal arts curricula Moderator: Joe Cole

The panel topic, Student and Faculty Research and Creative Endeavors in Liberal Arts Curricula, was prompted by the TNU Quality Enhancement Plan. The annual faculty and student research symposia and capstone course presentations are evidence of a vibrant TNU research and creative endeavor tradition. Faculty are involved in research and writing and have mentored students through various course and capstone projects. What have we learned about mentoring and managing students through these processes? What are the potential benefits and pitfalls of these activities? Panel: Randy Carden, Fred Cawthorne, Graham Hillard, Alice Patterson, Roy Philip Location: Boone 102/104

What place do liberal arts have in professional education? Moderator: Susan Lahey

The panel topic, What place do Liberal Arts have in professional education? was prompted by efforts to reduce the cost of higher education by replacing GenEd courses with additional major courses to meet increasing professional certification standards. Panel members represent TNU's teacher education, pastoral ministry, business/information technology, music, and graduate counseling programs. Panel: Amy Conditt, Mike Jackson, Mike Leih, Matt Murdock, Peter Wilson Location: Boone 106/108

How do our disciplines inform each other?

These sessions are conversations between two faculty members from different disciplines about how one discipline informs and is informed by the other discipline. In the spirit of Christian Liberal Arts education, listen and be reminded that lines between academic specialties are artificial constructs. Each 45-minute session features two conversations between two faculty members.

Location: Boone 109 MaryAnn Meiners (economics) – Bryce Fox (pastoral ministry) Jim Hiatt (business) – Terry Pruitt (psychology)	Location Boone 111 Brent McMillan (philosophy) – Sam Stueckle (mathematics) Tim Johnson (exercise/sport science) – Alisha Russell (biology)
--	---